8 January 2019 (Melbourne): Dragontail Systems Limited (ASX: DTS, the “Company” or “Dragontail”) is pleased to announce that Pizza Pan Group Pty Ltd (“PPG”) has decided to implement the Algo and drivers sharing platform into its Pizza Hut stores across Australia.

PPG has more than 280 stores throughout the continent and the deployment is planned to occur in few phases, starting with the equity stores, followed by a continued installation in most stores.

Dragontail holds the Algo Dispatch System, which streamlines the kitchen experiences for quick service restaurants (QSR), as well as the QT camera quality control system. Through those flagship products and other modules Dragontail has invented, it provides process optimization software and algorithms, also deploying software that utilizes Artificial Intelligence (AI) and advanced machine learning. The drivers sharing module, aims to optimize the drivers' functioning by sharing them between a number of close stores, and is designed to properly regulate the work force, thus adjusting the number of drivers to demand in each store at any hour of the day.

Dragontail has a longstanding relationship with Pizza Hut globally, including Pizza Hut Singapore, and Pizza Hut Canada which has recently selected the Algo as the Brand standard solution, by signing a unique agreement designating Dragontail's technology as the brand mandated product for all Pizza Hut stores in Canada.
